Resurrection Day Traditions

Easter is the name of the day that we celebrate the resurrection of Jesus. For some, it is a time together. In North Platte Public Schools, it is a holiday that allows for one of two mini spring breaks. It is often the high-water mark for attendance in worship at First Baptist. And throughout Church history, it is the holiest of days.

Yet, like Christmas, Easter is also a day that incorporates a lot of strange symbols and traditions that predate the church that have been adopted by believers. Things like Easter eggs, sunrise gatherings, bunny rabbits, and even the name "Easter" have also come to symbolize the season. Where do they come from, and what are we to do with them today?

I think it is helpful to understand that, outside of the empty tomb, most symbols of the Easter holiday are not unique to Christendom. Many cultures that predate Christianity had festivals in the spring to celebrate the lengthening of days, the beginning of spring, and the new life springing up from the ground. Sunrise services come from the celebration of the spring equinox and the worship of God's related to the sun. Bunnies are symbols of fertility. Eggs are symbols of new life. How bunnies came to lay eggs, I have no idea.

What the early church did, and I believe in doing so they set a good missionary example for us today, is they took celebrations and festivals that people already engaged in, eliminated many of the immoral elements of such gatherings, and repurposed pre-Christian traditions and imbued them with Christian symbolism. Instead of completely reinventing the culture, they transformed cultural traditions and practices with the gospel. So, what once was a celebration of new life and fertility became a celebration of new life we can have through the resurrection of Christ.

Christian teachers began to do object lessons with eggs around the time the resurrection was celebrated. As we crack open hard-boiled eggs, it is like opening the empty tomb. Sunrise services came to remind us that the Son of God rose early in the morning. The flowers also came to symbolize new life that believers can find through faith in Christ, and flowers that grow in the dark but thrive in the early spring became symbols of Christ being in the darkness in the tomb until Easter morning. The bunnies, well, I still don't get those, but I know that tradition was first practiced in America by the Pennsylvania Dutch.

So, I say, enjoy the Resurrection Day traditions you love, even if some of the traditions of Easter predate the church. Take time to briefly remind friends and family how these traditions can reflect the gospel of Christ and his victory over sin and death. Have a joyous Easter. In all of this, allow love of Christ and love of others to be the center of your thoughts and time on this day, including your worshipping, your feasting, and your celebrating the (hopefully) end of a long winter.

God Bless,

Clint

The Evening ABW group stuffed "crazy socks" with a variety of items at the March 5 meeting. The socks were filled with personal-use sized items, including toothpaste, chap stick, deodorant, shampoo, body wash, hand sanitizer, and gum, candies, etc.

The filled socks were donated to the youth at the high school who are without permanent housing.

The Evening ABW will meet at 7 p.m. April 2 in the Agape Room and is open to anyone who would like to attend.

Souper Time!!

The annual Epicenter Soup Cookoff was held on Wednesday, March 27th. There were 12 different kinds of soup which to everyone's amazement Scott King actually tried ALL of the them and Sadie Dannatt tried NINE of them! Isaac Holmes (clam chowder) and Drullingers (potato hamburger) tied for first. Honorable mentions went to Brand Brown's chicken and noodles and Sam McDaniel's cream cheese chicken chili. The three hundred dollars raised will go towards a mission in Oklahoma. Thanks to everyone to participated!
